

Where were you on the Expo Day?

If you weren't at the Expo Day you wouldn't have experienced an in-depth assessment of what the dispute between State and Federal Governments in relation to control of water in the Murray Darling Basin was really about.

Nor would you have heard from the recently appointed Minister for Planning, Justin Madden, [pictured left] when he opened the event.

You would have missed out on the new proposals for extending the SPEAR system into the planning arena, gems from old stayers Geoff Westcott and Kevin Bourne, the dry humour of Bob Ross in providing some background in geodesy and from many other eminent speakers from DSE who provided a range of information for us to consider and digest.

Judging by the packed venue, if you weren't at the Expo Day you are in the minority.

This year's event was a huge success thanks to Ed Young and the team who put it together. The programme had a different formula in which our Gold Sponsors C R Kennedy & Company and Ultimate Positioning provided their own presentations that were extremely interesting and informative.

What do you know about the latest Leica Scanners and their mind blowing capacity for measurement or Trimble's association with the largest ferris wheel to be built in the Southern Hemisphere? If you don't know then find out by giving our sponsors a call.

And if you weren't at the Expo Day.....ah well there's always next year.

Roger Green

[See page 2 for more Expo Day photographs]

Patron
Professor David de Kretser, AO,
Governor of Victoria